About the Project

This client came to us with the goal of creating a concept to renovate and refresh their space from their original 1990's office design, that would help them retain their current talent and entice new talent to come work for them. The key identifiers in creating a successful space were to create an up-to-date, functional, non-obtrusive space, with subtle nods to color and design, without being too trendy or intense.

This required new wall applications, carpet, architectural features, and furniture design and applications. Within the furniture design and application, this client required us to accommodate several work station types, semi and fully private offices, as well as a variety of collaboration areas. The following is the result of all of these elements coming together.
